

Early Intervention

Early intervention in the state of Florida offers services to infants and toddlers, from birth to thirty-six months, who are at risk for disabilities or developmental delays. Early intervention supports families and caregivers in increasing their child's participation in daily activities and routines that are important to the family.

Positive early learning experiences are crucial for later success in school, the workplace, and the community. Research shows that children's earliest experiences are critical to brain development.

For more information:

Florida Early Steps